

If you spot something unusual, report it!

Why reporting matters

1. It helps our cyber security team learn about potential threats.
2. A single tip-off can reveal a bigger problem.
3. Quick detection means less damage.

Reporting the issue ensures it is passed on to the right people, who are responsible for dealing with it.

You don't have to shoulder the worry on your own.

What's worth reporting?

For example:

- you receive a suspicious email
- your device is lost, broken or behaving oddly
- you think your password may have been compromised
- you've accidentally clicked on something dodgy.
